TEACHING &
LEARNING

A photograph of three baseball players on a field. One player in the center is wearing a white jersey with 'CANADA' and the number '9' in red. To his left is a man in a red jacket and cap. To his right is a catcher in a black helmet and gear. In the background, a scoreboard shows 'RUNS', 'HITS', and 'ERROR' with some numbers. There are also some logos and text like 'IT', 'LOCAL', and 'ENARIO' visible on the outfield fence.

TEACHING & LEARNING

Knowing the game inside and out is important, but if you don't know how to properly share that knowledge with your players, everyone misses out. Improve your teaching skills and learn how to coach in a way that facilitates learning amongst your athletes and contributes to a positive team environment. Topics include organization, explanations, demonstrations, supervision and feedback.

LEARNING OUTCOMES

Upon completing this clinic you will get credit for being able to:

- Ensure that the practice environment is safe;
- Implement an appropriately structured and organized practice in each part of the practice;
- Make interventions that promote learning;
- Apply an ethical decision-making process.

CLINIC STRUCTURE

The Teaching & Learning clinic is a four-hour, in-class course offered at various locations across Canada.

PREREQUISITES

Before attending the Teaching & Learning clinic, coaches must first successfully complete Baseball Canada's Online Initiation module.

EVALUATION AND CERTIFICATION

As it is part of the Baseball Canada Regional/Provincial Coach program, completing the Teaching & Learning clinic will give you an In Training status. In order to receive Regional Coach - Trained status you must then complete the Initiation Coach clinic, Skills Analysis clinic, and the Planning clinic.

Why NCCP?

IT BEGINS HERE.

Coaches are mentors, motivators and leaders. Along with parents and teachers, coaches have a profound impact on the future of our children. It's a great responsibility, and Canada's two million coaches embrace it with passion and dedication.

The National Coaching Certification Program (NCCP) gives coaches the confidence to succeed. When you take an NCCP workshop, you'll not only gain sport-specific technical abilities, but also leadership and decision-making skills.

NCCP training will open doors to new opportunities in coaching and in life.
