Introduction

September 16-22, 2024, marks the 10th Anniversary of National Coaches Week and we're asking everyone across Canada for your help celebrating!

Whether you're from a National Sport Organization, Provincial / Territorial Aboriginal Sport Body, University, club, or if you're a coach, parent, or athlete, we want your help saying #ThanksCoach to coaches from coast to coast to coast.

Why National Coaches Week?

National Coaches Week is a week to celebrate the tremendous positive impact coaches have on athletes and communities across Canada. It's an opportunity to recognize coaches for the integral role they play by simply saying #ThanksCoach.

>> Coaches matter!

- Coaches make valuable contributions to the quality of life in communities across Canada.
- Coaching contributes significantly to volunteerism in Canada.
- Coaches develop young athletes' passion for sport that can carry them on to greater heights

>> Coaching the numbers:

- More than 2 million people in Canada have received training in the National Coaching Certification Program (NCCP).
- One in seven Canadians will coach at some point in their lifetime.

>> Our partners make it happen!

National Coaches Week wouldn't be possible without the support of the sport community in Canada. National Coaches Week is supported by National Sport Organizations, their hundreds of Provincial/Territorial Sport Organizations, thousands of clubs, and the millions of athletes across Canada that join us in celebrating the powerful positive impact of Canada's coaches. This year, make sure one of them is you!

>> National Coaches Week Events

National Coaches Week features plenty of events across Canada from coach training, to coach recognition nights. There are many ways you can celebrate coaching!

We encourage you to host your own National Coaches Week event or even to simply incorporate coach recognition into an activity that is already taking place during National Coaches Week!

There are many different ways to recognize and celebrate coaches. Do you have a regular video call where you can add a #ThanksCoach message? Can you share a message of gratitude in an NCCP workshop? Could you add a moment of celebration to a practice session? All of those efforts count as National Coaches Week events! We've created many tools to help you get started and make your event more memorable.

Be sure to also check your Provincial or Territorial Coaching Representative's website, available here.

Planning your own activity

Are you interested in hosting your own National Coaches Week activity? The Provincial and Territorial Coaching Representatives (P/TCRs) across the country are here to help. Whether you're hosting an NCCP online event, a virtual celebration call, or any other coaching activity, the P/TCRs are your number one resource for support.

Need a background for a video call? Download this digital backdrop to help brand your virtual event!

Contact your P/TCR for more information on event support in your region, here.

#ThanksCoach Profiles

Writing a profile about a coach who has had a positive impact on your community is a great way to say thanks. The #ThanksCoach profile initiative is part of National Coaches Week that helps celebrate the diversity of coaches across Canada and the positive impact they have across the country.

Below are some questions you can provide your athletes with to get information about coaches in your community that you want to profile. Share the profile on your website, eNewsletter, or by social media, and tell us about a coach that deserves a big thank you. Don't forget to add a great action shot of your coach!

Please attach a picture of your coach if possible or your club logo.

Be sure to share it on your social media channels, and use the hashtag #ThanksCoach, or #CoachesWeek!

>> Media and Government Relations

During National Coaches Week we encourage everyone in Canada to put a spotlight on coaches and give this largely volunteer part of Canadian sport a thanks. Communities across Canada also have an important role to play in bringing attention to the importance of celebrating coaches in Canada to the media, and local governments.

We've prepared some templates to support communities across Canada in engaging their local mayor's offices, and media in the recognition campaign.

Mayoral Proclamation

A proclamation is an opportunity to make a public announcement and to create community awareness about National Coaches Week while celebrating the tremendous positive impact coaches have on athletes and communities.

Here are some steps you can follow to have National Coaches Week proclaimed in your community:

1. Contact your mayor's office or local councilor to request a proclamation. You can make initial contact in writing by customizing the Letter to your Mayor and Proclamation templates below
2. Remember, city officials are incredibly busy. Your request will likely need to compete for attention with dozens of others. You'll need to be both persistent and helpful to be successful. If you do not hear back from your mayor's office or local councilor within a day or two, follow up with a phone call ensuring that they received your request and offer additional resources or information.
3. Make an appointment to meet with your mayor or councilor for the signing of the proclamation. If you can, arrange to have a photo taken of them signing the proclamation.
4. If you're successful, let us know about it on Facebook and Twitter using #CoachesWeek and #ThanksCoach! The proclamations are a key part of getting the word out about coach appreciation across Canada.

Letter to your Mayor

[Date]

Dear [Name],

On behalf of [Your Organization/Community], I am writing to you today to request that you issue an official public proclamation recognizing National Coaches Week from September 16-22, 2024 in our community.

National Coaches Week will put a spotlight on coaches and give this, largely volunteer, integral part of Canadian sport a thanks. National Coaches Week encourages Canadians to say thanks and to celebrate the tremendous positive impact coaches have on athletes and communities.

I am requesting that National Coaches Week be publicly proclaimed in [Your Town/City/Community] in order to say thanks to coaches in Canada.

More information on National Coaches Week is available at www.coach.ca/nationalcoachesweek, and our Organizing Committee is happy to provide your office with suggested text for the proclamation. I look forward to following up with your office in the next few days.

[Name], thank you in advance for your consideration and support for Canadian coaches.

Sincerely,

Engaging the Media

Getting the news media to pay attention to your event can be a challenge. Like your mayor or local councilor, they are incredibly busy. Your request will need to compete with possibly dozens of others for their attention. Nevertheless, there are a few techniques that will help increase your odds of getting your event covered.

For example:

1. Most reporters are responsible for a specific “beat,” or focus area. Before you make your pitch, take some time to identify the editor or reporter in your city or town who’s most likely to respond. For National Coaches Week, try to identify your local sports reporter, or city/community affairs reporter. This will minimize the likelihood that your pitch will get lost in the shuffle.
2. Reporters rely on relationships. Once you’ve identified the right ones, follow them on Twitter (most have their accounts listed) and share or comment on some of their previous stories before submitting your pitch.
3. Reporters are pressed for time. In many cases, they’ll give their attention to the organizations that can give them everything they need (press release, spokespersons, images or videos, etc.); in the format they need, in one package. When preparing your pitch, be sure you’ve included everything they need – the resources in this kit will help.
4. Make it relevant. National Coaches Week is a cross-Canada event. However, a local reporter will be more interested in highlighting a coach in your community. Try to identify a coach in your city/community who’s willing to be profiled in the media.
5. Be accessible. Be sure to include your own contact information in your pitch and be sure that someone is always on-hand to answer their questions. Reporters rarely call twice.

Use the following templates to support your media engagement.
